Dear Alan

We are medium to small sized business in the service industry. Main business being the slaughter of animals and recently extending to sales of by product and export of products as well. It has been 7 years since we have been in a partnership with your company and have grown from a network of 7 computers in one building to around 35 computers and 4 servers' network across the full site and this is still growing. Currently we are trying to create a virtual network between 3 business partners on the one site but running they own networks

Jim Manning has been our account manager since he joined Maclean about 4 years ago. We have enjoyed a very good relationship with Jim and he was the one to come up with the network solution for us when we migrated from Novel Network to Microsoft Small business Server. Last year seeing the strain on the network and the large number of users he helped AMP migrate to the current network server, which is Microsoft server 2003.

Macleans have been quite an integral part of AMP's I.T developments as we treat your company as our I.T. advisors rather than just I.T. services provider. You have managed the integration of our different systems and have always come up with a practical solution to our problems.

We have recommended Maclean's to the related companies and we would recommend Maclean's anyone that needed I.T. advice.

I hope our good relationship rather partnership with Maclean continues for long time yet.

Yours Sincerely
