MACLEAN COMPUTING LIMITED

In 1996, Wynyard Wood embarked on a voyage to the then unknown territory of a Windows Based PC Network (replacing our long held Unix Network). Enquiries at the time suggested that a small IT Company called Maclean Computing would be an appropriate partner for our journey. We have been clients of Maclean Computing since that time, though they are no longer the small IT Company they once were.

As a medium size legal practice (40 partners and staff) without the luxury of inhouse IT staff, we rely on Maclean Computing to not only maintain our network to prevent business interruption, but also to guide us through the myriad of possible options for future development and enhancements, consistent with our goal of maintaining a reliable network that meets all our needs, enables us to become more efficient at our core business, without spending unnecessary amounts on software and hardware that actually add little benefit.

We have worked with our Account Manager, Shane Kerr, for many years and his understanding of how our practice works, and appropriate IT systems for a firm of this type and size, has been invaluable to us. We appreciate that Shane does not "push" new products upon us and is always happy to discuss with us the various cost benefit analysis of new technology and what would be appropriate for us. The friendly and professional advice we receive makes the IT area much more comfortable for relative novices like the writer.

In 90% of cases, engineers are available promptly to deal with the inevitable faults and niggles that any IT system generates. These problems can now often be dealt with offsite, speeding the process up immensely.

Though we are often approached by other IT Companies, Maclean Computing have consistently responded to our needs and protected our interests in the rapidly changing IT arena. They have never given us a reason to consider changing suppliers and we are confident in recommending Maclean Computing to firms looking for a reliable, consistent and proactive IT partner.

The writer is happy to discuss this more in person if desired.

Yours faithfully
WYNYARD WOOD
